

Regulation does not mean being calm all the time.

Regulation means being in a state where the brain and body can stay connected and flexible — even during times of stress.

This then allows you to help regulate your child in a connected and calm way.

